But we're still asking for an interview which is where we would ask the other questions. It's going to be very tricky to get any kind of response from them on the specifics - where as the broader questions of perceived insensitivity and questions we're sure of the answers to (like was an ambo called) would be the ones we'd be forcing them to answer only in an interview.

Just added a few extra questions to this document. All in caps. See what you think.
