Let's change the line about repeated requests for the CCTV footage to
 " But there's some good news for Brittany tonight. The Parliament House authorities have told us the CCTV footage will be made available to investigators if required."

PART I

OPENING LINK

The Liberal Party is understandably sensitive to criticism that it has a women problem.

But tonight that issue is being debated again with claims by a young staffer that she was raped in a ministerial office in Parliament House.

Brittany Higgins says the Government let her down. The word she uses is "betrayal."

I sat down with her for this exclusive television interview.

PART III

LISA LINK

A federal government spokesman admits that the meeting between Brittany Higgins and Senator Reynolds should not have taken place in the office where the alleged assault occurred.

But he insists that the Defence Minister encouraged Brittany to speak to the police and guaranteed there would be no impact on her career.

CLOSER - WE NEED TO CHANGE THIS....

Naturally, we approached all the people named in our story and all our requests for interviews were declined. They remain open of course.

Full statements on behalf of the Prime Ministers Office/Fiona Brown, Linda Reynolds, Michaelia Cash and the Australian Federal Police can be seen on our website.

And, despite repeated requests, no-one can tell us when or if Brittany Higgins will get access to that all-important CCTV footage.
