Police: At 7pm last night, a violent confrontation occurred within Margaret Street at Belfield where a number of people were gathered for an event at a church. A group of protestors, about 10 people, were within the vicinity of Margaret Street, further along the street from where the church was, when a mob of about 250 people from the event rushed down the street. Police were present on the scene and were able to stand between the protestors and the mob of people. A number of projectiles were thrown at the police and at the members of the public but luckily nobody was seriously hurt as a result of that. With further police resources requested PAWS and OSG crews were also on scene and we were able to push the mob back. We were able to push the protesters into a police vehicle and remove them safely from the scene of the incident. It took about 30 minutes to get the incident under control and the group of people pushed back along Margaret Street and into the church grounds where an event was occurring. This was a very violent confrontation that occurred at an event which was supposed to be a peaceful protest was supposed to be occurring at. This incident will not be tolerated. This type of violence is not to be tolerated by New South Wales Police and we have commenced an investigation into the incident. So far there has been two persons charged as a result of the incident and we are reviewing numerous amounts of footage. We expect further charges to be relayed, to be laid today against a number of other offenders. At this time is there any questions?

Reporter: [0:01:42] with this Christian [0:01:46] urging people to take violent action against the [0:01:51]. Should the police have been more prepared?

Police: The police were only notified of the event a few days prior. We worked with the event organisers and the protest group to ensure that this was going to be a peaceful event. We had no indication that there would be any violence at the incident. We did have a number of police resources on the scene and we had been at the scene since 5:00 p.m. with the event to commence at 7:00 p.m. We did not expect 250 people to come from that event and have a violent confrontation in the street.

34 Reporter: We also believe this [0:02:25] types of groups from eyewitness account that 35 [0:02:30].

36 Police: At this stage we only know of one protest group that was present at the 37 event or outside the event, a hundred metres down from where the church
38 was. If there were other groups there, we do not know at this stage.

39 Reporter: Are we able to clarify [0:02:49] protestors outside the [0:02:52] other people
40 [0:02:54] people from inside the [0:02:57] that were a part of this?

41 Police: At this stage we believe that the people who were involved in the violent
42 confrontation were attending the event that was to be held at the church
43 hall. We were told that there were between 500, there is roughly around 44 500 people expected to attend and those numbers coincide with the amount
45 of people that were at the scene.

46 Reporter: What do police know about the group Christian Lives Matter?

47 Police: I'm not aware of anything. I can't comment on that at this stage.

48 Reporter: There was a group of [0:03:22] of another [0:03:24] was it the protestors or 49 the people from inside the event?

50 Police: The protest group appeared to be peaceful and they were standing and were 51 being shielded by the police. So all of the projectiles appear to come from 52 the crowd that were at the event.

53 Reporter: [0:03:39] what types of projectiles they were?

54 Police: At this stage we believe it to be water bottles and some rocks that were 55 thrown.

56 Reporter: How would you describe this sort of event and what's happened [0:03:50]?

57 Police: This was nothing but a violent confrontation. These people were there to 58 protest against, for their own beliefs, and there was an event occurring
59 which they were there for to protest against. This was meant to be a very 60 peaceful protest and unfortunately has turned into a very violent event.

61 Reporter: [0:04:11] were advised by police to not [0:04:18]?

62 Police: Police had been working with the event organisers and with the protest
63 group for a number of days in relation to this. Part of that was in consult 64 with Mr Latham. He was asked whether he wanted to speak after the violent 65 confrontation had occurred and he decided that he still wished to do that,
66 and we were there to make sure that no further incidents occurred.

67 Reporter: Are you concerned [0:04:44] sort of violent behaviour [0:04:50]?

68 Police: That's not something that I can comment on.

69 Reporter: I just have one more thing to confirm, the projectiles being thrown, were 70 they being thrown at police or at the protestors or both?

71 Police: With, well at this stage it appears that it was at both of them. The police
72 were standing directly in front of the protest group to protect them, so.

73 Reporter: Sorry, just to clarify, you had spoken to Mr Latham before, there was 74 evidence that we heard before that there was a significant response being
75 prepared in response to these protests. Can you just walk us through why
76 police didn't do more earlier?

77 Police: There was no indication that this was going to be a violent event at all. We 78 had sufficient resources for the information that had been gathered. We 79 had worked with the event organisers. We had worked with the protesters.
80 It was only a very small group of protesters and the church had also spoken
81 to their congregation and the people attending to ensure that no violence
82 would occur. So what happened is very disappointing and we were able to 83 gather quickly a number of police resources to ensure a sufficient response
84 to the incident.

85 Reporter: Can you confirm whether or not the event [0:05:53]?

86 Police: The event was taking place within the church grounds, yes.

87 Reporter: [0:05:59] closing [0:06:03] yelled at the protestors on the streets as they 88 leave back into their, I guess, [0:06:13]. Are you concerned that there might 89 be a follow on, I guess the types of, or what can police do to [0:06:20]?

90 Police: At this stage we do not believe there will be any further incidents in relation 91 to this. This was an isolated incident in relation to that particular event. We,
92 these people, the protesters were removed from the scene for their own
93 safety by the police and as far as we know there will be no further incidents
94 involved in this group. That's it.

Mark Latham:

Now, on the second topic of what happened last night, in this campaign over the past 10 weeks I have been to a dozen meetings about important issues of religious and parental rights. Also talking about the agenda that Alex Greenwich has advocated, so called transgender conversion therapy ban and ending the exemption on discrimination matters for non-Government schools, so I was expecting to go to Belfield last night to the Catholic church there, it would be the normal productive discussion, a peaceful political gathering. I didn't organise the meeting, I was invited along with three other guest speakers. I was told through my assistant late in the afternoon that there would be a transgender protest, they were threatening to blockade the road and blockade access to St Michael's Church. The Police said that I should avoid Margaret Street at the front where the blockade was supposed to take place and park at the rear of the Belfield Bowling Club, which I did. I entered the hall coming in from the side and found many scores of mothers, grandmothers, other family members who were gathering. The parish priest was sitting on the stage and to me it looked like it was going to be the normal meeting that I am accustomed to. We have had something very similar at the Serbian Club in Bonnyrigg a couple of weeks earlier and those organisers got together with the Belfield community, church community, to organise this gathering. Then the Police informed me about the unfortunate violence at the front. I think protestors have got the right to protest but they should have been doing it on the footpath instead of threatening to blockade the road. If you block the road and you cause traffic congestion, if you deny parishioners the normal access to their place of worship, a church, then you cause them great offence. Unfortunately some people took that into their own hands. Any violence at a political meeting is unfortunate, inappropriate, to be condemned, but let's understand that this was instigated, the trigger for it was the protest organised on social media days earlier apparently by these left-wing transgender protestors. There have been media reports, false reports, that those who had the counterprotest were One Nation supporters. I didn't talk to any of them. I don't know how they voted, or they plan to vote. I don't know anything as to who they exactly were. I didn't see any of it because I was in the hall where we had ultimately a constructive political discussion about the issues that I have mentioned. It went for 90 minutes. I gave a 25 minute speech. The other guest speakers spoke. I answered about eight or nine questions from the floor and then I left through the same way I had come in and got in my car, said goodbye to the bowlers who were having a great night, having a few beers rolling a few down, and drove home. So, that's what I encountered and I would urge these people who glue themselves to the road or have protests about climate that are designed to cause traffic jams and was certainly a big traffic jam last night, don't inconvenience others, don't blockade entry to a place of worship, something that is sacred to that community, just have your protest on the footpath and don't trigger this sort of reaction. As I said at the meeting, anyone who engaged in violence you did the wrong thing. I said to them

48 when you leave here keep your hands to yourself, no violence, just disburse
49 peacefully which I understand people did so I am grateful they got that 50 message but the whole thing was a bad reflection on our democracy. It is 51 better for people to sort their differences out at the ballot box as they are
52 doing right here at Cessnock pre-poll and on Saturday sort it out at the ballot
53 box peacefully, the Australian way, the democratic way and this whole 54 tradition now where we have got a protest and a counterprotest, we will
55 soon have the counter-counterprotest. It is not the way to run things
56 particularly when it spills over into violence that we saw on Margaret Street,
57 Belfield last night. Happy to answer any questions.

58 Reporter 1: [inaudible]

59 Mark Latham: The Police officer said to me that I shouldn't speak and I said to him One
60 Nation does not...

61 Reporter: [inaudible]

62 Mark Latham: Yes, the Police officer said I should not speak, just go home and I said to him
63 two very important things, One Nation does not participate in cancel culture.
64 There is no way four days before an election the One Nation leader is going 65 to be cancelled because some trans activists threaten to blockade a road and 66 entry to a church. We don't participate in cancel culture. Candidates have 67 rights and it is a sacred right of our democracy that you can speak to what 68 was a peaceful meeting inside the hall for mums and grandmothers and 69 others who were assembled and I said to him, the Police had not been inside
70 the hall and from what I saw never attended the hall and didn't know the 71 sort of people that I had met who I would have been letting them down and 72 they would have been wasting their time, a lot of them would have gone
73 home as well if in effect the meeting was cancelled. The meeting was 74 conducted successfully, we provided information, had feedback, and 75 everyone disbursed peacefully including myself. I thought the Police officer
76 who appeared flustered by what had happened on the street was telling me
77 something that was antidemocratic. It should be the role of the New South
78 Wales Police to defend the rights of candidates running at a democratic 79 election to exercise their free speech, and I did.

80 Reporter: Has anything happened [inaudible]?

81 Mark Latham: No. No, they, the Police officer said to me we will give you an escort out of 82 here, we are worried about your safety, we need to get you out safely. I
83 never saw him or his colleague again. Two hours later when I left, I hadn't 84 seen any Police observation at the meeting, they weren't in the hall, they 85 weren't looking through the window, I just walked out with the main 86 organiser and found my car so I don't know what they meant by saying they 87 were going to escort me out but from my point of view they disappeared. I
88 never saw the Police after that discussion.

89 Reporter: [inaudible] to speak to you [inaudible]?

90 Mark Latham: They said that and that would have been to condone and authorise cancel
91 culture. They would have cancelled my rights as a candidate to speak on 92 important issues, religious rights, parental rights, the so-called transgender 93 issues raised by Alex Greenwich and supported by Perrottet and Minns that 94 I thoroughly oppose, that ban they are talking about or the denial of parental
95 rights that I spoke about the protection of non-Government schools, these 96 are vitally important issues and I had unlike the Police spoken to the mums,
97 the grandmothers, the families already assembled in the hall and made a
98 judgement subsequently proved 100% accurate that we should have the 99 meeting. We shouldn't be cancelled because some protestors turned up 100 trying to close us all down. One Nation does not surrender to cancel culture.
101 One Nation does not surrender to censorship. One Nation does not 102 surrender to protestors who are trying to stop people getting into their place
103 of worship and last night I did not surrender.

104 Reporter: [inaudible]

105 Mark Latham: Well I was told by the Police through my assistant late in the afternoon that 106 they were going to blockade the road, the road wouldn't be open so avoid 107 Margaret Street. Drive past it and go around the back to the parking of the 108 Bowling Club which I did. So that seemed sensible Police advice. The road
109 was going to be blockaded when I glanced at it driving along. There were 110 Police cars, the blue lights, and activity probably a couple of hundred metres 111 down the road at what turns out to be the front of the church but in my 112 attendance last night I didn't see any of the stuff that is available now, what 113 you might think of as chaotic violent scenes, I just stuck to the meeting hall
114 which was at the rear of the property and if you hadn't had told me there
115 was a riot at the front, I would have said this was as peaceful, normal,
116 productive a meeting about important issues for 400 people worried about 117 those issues. By the end of it I got a standing ovation which I was happy with 118 and I left and people peacefully disbursed. I didn't see any of the people at 119 the front, the original band of protestors or those who launched the 120 counterprotest.

121 Reporter: [inaudible]

122 Mark Latham: What do you mean backlash?

123 Reporter: [inaudible]

124 Mark Latham: Well the people who were going to blockade the road, they were in the New
125 South Wales parliament trying to close down our parliamentary committee
126 one day. I mean they are always opposed to me, encouraged by the likes of 127 Alex Greenwich. I would say to Alex Greenwich, who is one of the instigators 128 of what happened last night with those protestors, tell your people not to 129 blockade roads. Tell your people not to try and deny entry to churchgoers to 130 their sacred place of worship. Put them on the footpath, they can waive their 131 placards, chant their anti-Latham chants until they are blue in the face but 132 don't provoke and trigger the sort of violence that we saw there last night.
133 Let's have no misunderstanding about where this started and also the fact it

134 is fake news to say that the counterprotest were One Nation supporters. I 135 didn't talk to any of them in advance. I don't exactly know who they are.
136 They weren't wearing any One National material or organised by us in any 137 shape or form. They were, I assume, churchgoers offended by the way in 138 which they were denied access, regular access to their place of worship.
139 They took things into their own hands. That's the wrong approach.

The Project (Georgie): MPs from all corners of the political spectrum have expressed their disgust at One Nation’s Mark Latham over his vile homophobic attack on New South Wales Independent Alex Greenwich yesterday. The now deleted tweet was sent in response to an article in which Greenwich had branded Latham disgusting. Latham is yet to apologise. His remarks were so vile, even One Nation leader Pauline Hanson has condemned them.

Pauline Hanson: I want you to know that I don’t condone them and neither do my members of parliament or party associates. I think they are disgusting.

The Project (Hamish): Well, Alex Greenwich is with us now. Alex, I know it’s been a big, very unpleasant 24 hours for you. How are you doing?

Alex Greenwich: Hi Hamish. Hi everyone. Look, I’m doing okay. A homophobic tweet is not what I wanted to be talking about a week after a long election, however, you know I’ve got a loving husband, amazing friends and family, and a really supportive electorate. And my thoughts go to people in the LGBT community, particularly the trans community, who deal with these kinds of attacks all the time and don’t have the same support that I have.

The Project (Georgie): There are calls for an apology to come from Mark Latham, but Alex, do you feel that that’s necessary? Would you want one? Do you need one?

Alex Greenwich: I’m not expecting an apology from Mark Latham. I don’t need an apology from Mark Latham. I’m really grateful for the support of all of my colleagues in Parliament and the amount of people who have reached out to me. What I do want is my parliamentary colleagues to back me in removing all discrimination that targets the LGBT community and make sure that my community is supported right across New South Wales. That’s my priority. That’s what I want to talk about.

The Project (Susie): Mark Latham has been re-elected to the Upper House for another eight years. Do you think that someone who is willing to say this sort of stuff publicly is fit to serve in office?

Alex Greenwich: Look, I don’t begin to understand Mark Latham. I have actually been contacted by a number of One Nation supporters, people who don’t usually contact my office, people pretty outraged at the comments that he made. Look, he’s going to be in the next parliament. I think the question probably

35 is more, is parliament the right workplace for him? You know, he, these are 36 not the comments of someone who is well, as I said earlier today. You know,
37 I hope that he's got support around him because this is not, the tone of what
38 he said does not, is not what is said by a person who is well or by a person
39 who is reasonable. So I think he probably needs to consider whether this is 40 the right workplace for him.

41 The Project (Hamish): True, true to who you are I think Alex is the fact that you are saying, look, I
42 want to refocus this around the legislative changes that I want. What do you
43 actually want to do in this parliament? It seems like you have the bulk of the 44 New South Wales parliament across the aisle sort of wrapping around you
45 now to push forward with this. What are you going to hold them to now?

46 Alex Greenwich: Well it was great during the election campaign to get the support of both 47 major parties for my bill to prohibit conversion practices. That's going to be 48 really important. But that's just one part of law reform which I'll be 49 progressing with through my LGBTQI equality bill. We need to update our 50 antidiscrimination laws in New South Wales. Currently in a private school
51 you can be fired for, for being a teacher who's gay. Or if you're a kid who 52 comes out, you can be expelled from the school just on that basis. We know
53 that the trans community in New South Wales also is unable to get identity
54 documents that truly reflect their sex or gender identity and there's long
55 overdue intersex reforms which we're seeing start in the ACT and we need
56 to bring to New South Wales. So what I'd really like to see is my colleagues 57 showing their support for the, not just for me, but showing their support for 58 the wider LGBTI community and joining me to work together to progress
59 these reforms so New South Wales can be a place where LGBTQ people don't 60 face discrimination and we don't have laws that almost give permission for 61 the type of harassment that I faced in the past 24 hours.

62 The Project (Hamish): Alex, I understand your partner is waiting with a glass of wine just out of 63 frame, so we'll let you go and enjoy that, thanks for your time tonight.

Pauline Hanson calls on Mark Latham to apologise for ‘disgusting’ homophobic tweet

Independent Alex Greenwich does ‘not intend to engage’ with One Nation MP’s comment aimed at him, but others spring to his defence

The One Nation leader, Pauline Hanson, has called on Mark Latham to apologise for comments about the sexuality of fellow state MP Alex Greenwich that left the New South Wales environment minister, Penny Sharpe, “physically sickened”.

Latham, the NSW One Nation leader, made the comments on Twitter on Thursday morning in response to an article in which Greenwich called Latham “a disgusting human being”. The article was about LGBTQ+ protesters being targeted outside an event Latham spoke at earlier this month.

In response, Latham said “disgusting?” and then went on to make gratuitous comments about a sexual act. Guardian Australia has chosen not to publish the full comment.

The comment was deleted within three hours but by then had already been seen by the gay independent MP it was aimed at, as well as being shared more widely.

Greenwich said that he did “not intend to engage with the matter further” after the tweet’s deletion.

“My focus in the parliament will be working with the majority of members who support the LGBTQ community to progress important reforms,” he said.

Late on Thursday afternoon, Hanson posted a video to social media decrying the comments and insisting Latham should apologise to voters.

“I want you to know that I don’t condone them [the comments] and neither do my members of parliament or party associates,” she said.

“I think they are disgusting.”

Hanson said she had tried to call the leader of the NSW branch of her party but could not get through.

“I’ve actually tried to ring Mark a couple of times, to no avail, and I have clearly sent a text message to him telling him my views and also I’ve asked him to give the people an apology,” she said.

“I will leave it at that. It is now over to Mark to answer the people.”

Others sprang to Greenwich’s defence with Sharpe saying she was shocked to see such language being used in 2023 and calling on Latham to apologise.

“I was physically sickened by that tweet,” she said.

“Homophobia is always unacceptable and there is never an excuse. Mr Latham should apologise to Alex Greenwich immediately.”

Latham, a former federal Labor leader, had served four years of his eight-year term as a state upper house MP but used a loophole at this year's election that allowed him to resign and re-run at the top of the ticket in the hopes of increasing One Nation's representation in the chamber.

At this stage, it appears he will be re-elected but the One Nation vote did not grow. The makeup of the upper house will be finalised next month.

Greens MP Jenny Leong said the comments showed why Latham should not be engaged with.

“The hateful homophobic and transphobic bile that spews from former Labor leader turned One Nation MP Mark Latham demonstrates why no political party or independent representative should engage with him,” she said.

“Being an elected representative doesn't give him a free pass.

“The Greens are committed to working with all elected members of parliament across the political spectrum who show respect for equality and recognise that we all collectively play a role in stamping out discrimination in our communities - One Nation clearly doesn't meet this baseline.”

It is just over a week since an LGBTQ+ rights group claimed they were attacked outside a Catholic church in south-west Sydney, where Latham was giving a speech.

Community Action for Rainbow Rights said on Twitter that as they were protesting outside St Michael's church hall in Belfield, a mob set upon the protesters.

Since then LGBTQ+ rights advocates are calling for stronger legal protections after a series of attacks against Australia’s queer community.

Greenwich will seek to outlaw so-called gay conversion “therapy” in this term of parliament.

Last year an independent report into bullying, harassment and sexual misconduct in NSW parliament workplaces conducted by the former sex discrimination commissioner Elizabeth Broderick found bullying was a significant issue.

Latham has not responded to request for comment.

Alex Greenwich launches legal attack on Mark Latham over homophobic slurs

Alexandra Smith

May 1, 2023 — 5.00am

KEY POINTS

- One Nation leader Mark Latham tweeted a highly graphic and offensive comment aimed at Sydney MP Greenwich in March.
- Greenwich has made a formal complaint to NSW Police as well to Anti-Discrimination NSW and has initiated defamation proceedings.
- Latham last week doubled down on his comments and maintained he would not apologise.

Sydney MP Alex Greenwich has launched an extraordinary three-pronged legal attack on One Nation's Mark Latham after the political firebrand refused to apologise for a series of homophobic and sexualised slurs.

Greenwich has made a formal complaint to NSW Police and Anti-Discrimination NSW on the grounds of homosexual vilification and has also initiated defamation proceedings after Latham tweeted a highly graphic and offensive comment aimed at Greenwich, who is gay.

Mark Latham (left) last week doubled down on his comments, and maintained he would not apologise to Alex Greenwich. DOMINIC LORRIMER

Latham last week doubled down on his comments, which the party's figurehead Pauline Hanson condemned, and maintained he would not apologise.

Greenwich's legal assault could have a significant impact on Latham's ability to remain in parliament if he is charged with "using a carriage service to menace, harass or cause offence", the criminal offence cited by Greenwich in his formal complaint to Police Commissioner Karen Webb.

That offence carries a potential five-year jail term, and under the NSW Constitution, a member of parliament from either house can be disqualified from office if convicted "of an offence for life or for a term of 5 years or more".

Greenwich said he took the extraordinary legal steps against Latham because "enough is enough".

One Nation's federal leader Pauline Hanson condemned Mark Latham's comments. ALEX ELLINGHAUSEN

"I've been openly gay in public life for 15 years and in parliament for over 10 years, and never have I experienced such a homophobic, sexualised attack that exposed me to contempt, ridicule and extreme abuse, based on my sexuality," Greenwich said.

Latham made the comments in March in response to a Herald and Age article in which Greenwich called the former Labor leader "a disgusting human being". The article was about LGBTQI protesters who were targeted outside a candidates' forum which Latham addressed during the state election campaign.

Hanson swiftly condemned the homophobic comments describing them as "disgusting" and demanded that Latham apologise to voters. She said she had unsuccessfully tried to contact Latham.

"I want you to know that I don't condone them [the comments] and neither do my members of parliament or party associates," Hanson told her supporters in a Facebook message on March 30.

After maintaining his silence for 24 hours, Latham tweeted "never apologise, never explain" before issuing a statement to News Corp in which he said: "Sometimes in public life when you throw out insults they come back at you harder and truer ... So boo-hoo Alex Greenwich."

His comments were widely condemned, with Premier Chris Minns pushing for a bipartisan agreement to block the One Nation NSW leader from having any additional powers in the new parliament.

Last week, Latham – who was re-elected on March 25 to the upper house for an eight-year term – did an interview with radio host Chris Smith's online show, where he doubled down on his comments about Greenwich and refused to apologise. He also disputed that Hanson had tried to contact him.

Latham told Smith that being labelled a “disgusting human being is as extreme as you can get” and said: “I took it as an attack on my love of my children, the role in my community, my work in public life.”

“After a week of copping it on Twitter, I told him [Greenwich] what I thought and I speak for a lot of straight men,” Latham said, before insisting heterosexual men would agree with his views on homosexuality.

Latham was contacted for comment on Greenwich’s legal action. A concerns notice relating to the defamation proceedings was sent to Latham on April 19.

Greenwich said he was also taking action for “young and old LGBTQIA+ people who face regular abuse.”

“It’s 2023 and LGBTQIA+ Australians shouldn’t have to put up with abuse that targets our sexuality, character, or ability to do our jobs,” Greenwich said.

Greenwich said he would also instruct his legal team to approach Twitter about its platform seemingly allowing “extreme homophobia, transphobia, racism and religious bigotry”.

His lawyer, Nicholas Stewart, said Greenwich was “taking legal action to put a stop to what is a targeted personal attack on him and perceptions of our community.”

“Mr Greenwich is putting his foot down. He is sick of the hatred and ridicule directed at himself and the wider LGBTQIA+ community,” Stewart said.

“Most members of the LGBTQIA+ community have experienced some form of harassment or violence because of their identity. You only have to look at the recent incidents of hate speech and violence on Oxford Street and the vile homophobia and transphobia on social media to see that the LGBTQIA+ community is vulnerable.”

My Saturday ritual

Alex Greenwich

Lives in: Darlinghurst

MP Alex Greenwich is an early riser, Saturdays included. And now Darlinghurst's Qtopia Museum has thrown open its doors to Sydneysiders to celebrate the journey of Australia's Queer community – what better time to do that than just after Mardi Gras.

Early riser or Saturday sleep-in? I wake around 5.30am. I was conditioned to wake early from the marriage equality campaign, where I was up at 5am to do news grabs for radio. Plus my dog Max is an early riser.

Best place to catch up with friends? Lady Chu on Roslyn St, Potts Point. Nahji Chu has turned Roslyn St into a welcoming garden oasis filled with good vibes and great food. It's our favourite place (with husband Victor Hoeld) to go after a stressful week to debrief with friends over Sydney's best Vietnamese food. The best part is Nahji herself whose pride in her food, restaurant and customer experience is second to none.

Favourite park? Rushcutters Bay Park, whether it's an early morning jog, slow dog walk, or picnic with friends. This place is our second home and such an important piece of open space for all fellow apartment dwellers.

Local coffee haunt? It depends on the time, 5.45am after my run is Cafe C&M at Roslyn Gardens, 6.30am on the dog walk is Primary Coffee on Ward Ave, and weekend coffee (and sneaky croissant) is Ken's Continental on Bayswater Rd.

Best spot for date night? Bei, next door to Qtopia at Taylor Square. The owners of our favourite Valentine's Day restaurant Bei Amici opened Bei this year – the art and atmosphere are super chic, and the food (especially lasagne) warms your heart. Being in Taylor Square, it's an anchor for a bigger date night ... check an exhibition at the National Art School before dinner, and go for a dance or drink at a bustling bar or club.

Favourite takeaway? Mr T's, Paddington, goes well with RuPaul's drag race!

Where and when do you exercise? I start the day with an early run. I have an awesome personal trainer Jace Brown at PE Dept in Kings Cross, Vic and I do pilates together once a week, and I've started the occasional Barry's class in the lead up to Mardi Gras.

Best hidden treasure in NSW? Marrinawi Cove, Barangaroo, is my favourite place to swim in the harbour. I love to go for a walk with my mum along the harbour, then jump in for a swim. Huge thanks to former minister Rob Stokes for working with me to cut through red tape to create a beach environment in the middle of the city!

Favourite place to holiday in NSW? South Coast of NSW. Vic and I have had some of our best holidays at Hyams Beach.

What's your idea of the perfect Saturday? Getting up early, going for a walk with Vic and our dog, seeing friends for lunch. Now it will be showing off Qtopia to friends and family, cooking dinner at home watching old episodes of Veep, disconnecting from the world with RuPaul's drag race, and maybe going to a Sydney Theatre Company production, or if I'm not working Sunday hitting one of Sydney's gay clubs with friends like ARQ, Palms, Stonewall or Universal.
