I disagree about the second part on page 6 when he returns. I actually think the second part is more important. He is saying that despite parliament making its own laws that doesn't mean someone is immune from criminal actions that should be investigated by real police. But the system that's been established means it's tricky to get evidence.

It's backing up B's story of why the AFP weren't able to get the CCTV. He's explaining that this could potentially be more of a cover up than a stuff up.

The first two grabs of George Williams are almost tautologous.
 I reckon we only need the second.
 And I'm not sure he adds a lot when we return to him later in the story.

 Thanks Angus and Darryl this is looking extremely strong. And I agree, the ending is a ball tearer.
 I hope you're both having a well deserved sleep-in this morning for burning the midnight oil last night.

All up about 23.07 right now. I'll add the George Williams grabs in the morning.
 And Chris, the ending, well it's now quite breath taking. Thanks.
